AMANDA KHUMALO

My motto: It takes a village to raise a child; a positive change is what I'm striving for.

I am Amanda Khumalo, a qualified Bachelor of Education graduate from the University of Pretoria, specialising in IsiZulu Home Language, Geography and History. I am a passionate educator, IsiZulu tutor and proud Zulu author who believes that education should be inspiring, inclusive and empowering. I have experience teaching IsiZulu First Additional Language to learners from Grades 1-6 and tutoring learners from different schools. Through my tutoring work, I develop engaging and culturally relevant learning materials, support learners in improving their reading, writing and comprehension skills, and help them build confidence and a genuine interest in learning.

As an educator, I value learner-centred teaching, effective classroom management and lessons that respond to individual learning needs. I am committed to continuous professional growth and to making a meaningful difference in the academic and personal development of every learner I work with.

Through teaching, tutoring and writing, I strive to inspire learners, promote a love for language and education, and contribute positively to their future.
