STEPHEN MOLIFE

First Attempt In Learning, also known as 'FAIL' – it's a mantra I've lived by since my grade 8 maths class, and one that's driven me to help others overcome their own hurdles. I believe anyone can conquer maths and science; you just need to find the right approach. With a background in Biology, Mathematics, and Chemistry (A-level), and currently studying Computer Science at the University of Pretoria, I've been tutoring these subjects for years – and I love it. My goal is simple: to inspire students to keep pushing, even when it gets tough. Let's tackle those tricky subjects together and make learning a success story.
