

Meet your Tutor

FAITH MUSHWANA

Hi! My name is Faith, I am a third year BSc Informatics student with a passion for technology and helping others understand IT in a simple and practical way.

I offer IT tutoring for high school learners, particularly students who may find programming, databases and computer-related concepts challenging. I am comfortable teaching topics such as Delphi, SQL, text files and programming fundamentals including IF-statements and problem solving.

My approach to tutoring is patient, friendly and learner-focused. I believe that students learn best when they feel comfortable asking questions and are given explanations that make sense to them. Rather than simply giving answers, I aim to help learners understand the reasoning behind what they are doing so that they can become independent and more confident.

As a young woman studying in the technology field, I am especially passionate about encouraging girls to develop confidence in IT and consider careers in technology.

Whether you are struggling with a specific topic, preparing for a test or simply want to improve your IT skills I would be happy to help you learn and grow.
