NIANDI COETZEE

My name is Niandi Coetzee, and I am a third-year BCom Accounting Sciences student at the University of Pretoria.

I tutor Accounting and other commerce-related subjects, and I am passionate about helping high school learners build confidence in both their academic abilities and themselves.

I aim to make learning clear, practical, and manageable by focusing on strong conceptual understanding rather than memorisation. My tutoring approach emphasises patience, structured explanations, and consistent practice to help learners develop confidence and improve their results.

Outside of academics, I enjoy long-distance running and maintaining an active lifestyle, which helps me build discipline, consistency, and focus—qualities I strive to bring into every tutoring session.
